In NJ- LSRP Time is Here; RT is Ready!

Next week, new contaminant releases in NJ will be referred to Licensed Site Remediation Professionals to investigate and remediate.

Please contact us with any questions at the email address or phone number listed below.

Those responsible for causing the release are responsible for hiring an LSRP and new Site remediation rules will be out next week.

Those responsible for existing release cases have three years to engage an LSRP. Such cases can remain under NJDEP oversight until then. Most of RT's clients are taking a "wait and see" approach until the rules come out and the options are more clear.

For those who want to move into an LSRP lead cleanup, RT is ready, with over a decade of experience at Massachusetts and Connecticut LSP/LEP sites, we know the ropes of privatized cleanup approaches. One Team member currently has temporary LSRP status, and two more are expected in the near future.
