EPA NOW REQUIRES ELECTRONIC DISCHARGE MONITORING AND OTHER NPDES REPORTS

Although many states have had electronic reporting for some time, EPA now requires Electronic Discharge Monitoring Reports and for other NPDES Reports, according to a Final Rule published in the October 22nd Federal Register. Included in addition to Discharge Monitoring Reports are Notices of Intent to Discharge in Compliance with a General Permit, other General Permit Waivers, Certifications and Notices of Termination of Coverage. Other program reports may also be required to be submitted to authorize State NPDES Programs or in some instances to EPA through the National Environmental Information Exchange Network. The Rulemaking does not change the information required from NPDES-Permit Facilities under existing Regulations and practices.

The Rule is expected to improve utilization of environmental regulatory personnel, by shifting limited resources to important State Water Quality and Public Health activities. The transition from paper to electronic reporting will require close coordination and cooperation between EPA and authorized NPDES Programs, including state programs. The Rule will go into effect on December 21, 2015.
